GreenCare for Troops, located at Booth #584, connects families of active-duty deployed service members with professional lawn, landscape, and snow removal volunteers in all 50 states. "Propane is an all-American fuel, with the majority of the U.S.'s supply produced on American soil, and with much of the propane industry made up of family-run, small businesses for whom supporting service members and veterans is important," said Jeremy Wishart, director of off-road business development. "We felt these goals really aligned with Project EverGreen's GreenCare for Troops program, which is highly regarded in the lawn care community."

PERC's booth will also showcase how propane is a domestic fuel that can help landscape contractors support American jobs and businesses. For example, more than 90% of U.S. propane supplies are produced in here the U.S. Propane also helps landscape contractors improve their own communities by reducing emissions and helping to eliminate harmful gasoline and diesel spills.

The booth will feature propane-powered mowers from manufacturers such as John Deere and Bob-Cat. Two Kohler engines and a Briggs and Stratton engine will also be displayed, as well as a propane autogas vehicle.
